

Task - Poor Kids Report

While the documentary is still fresh in your memory, you can use it to write a report on the documentary about child poverty in the UK.

How to tackle the report:

(Use all your notes from the documentary, your own research and the true/false sheet provided at the start. Use the facts you copied down from the documentary too.)

The introductory paragraph should include a general description of what child poverty is (a definition) and some facts about the documentary*. You could also comment that many people probably do not realise just how bad child poverty is in Britain.

Second paragraph should introduce the children who were the main focus of the documentary and mention where they live and any family details.

Then, take a new paragraph for each child and explain their main problems. Write down as much of the content as you can remember: include what you saw on film, what happened, what they said and what we learned.

- Sam (& Kayleigh)
- Courtney
- Paige

The second last is for you to express your views on the children's different situations and what you saw or learned about child poverty in the UK. (Use some of the statistics you copied down.) If you have ideas about how things could be improved, you can mention them here.

The final paragraph should contain an overview of the whole documentary and what you thought about it and learned from it.

*

Poor Kids - BBC Scotland documentary 2011

Produced by Brian Woods

Filmed and directed by Jezza Neumann

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8BN7ml6b-e4>